PLEAS MADE FOR SNOW REMOVAL TO COUNTY BOARD

"TIME TO ADOPT A NEW SYSTEM AND MEET
MODERN CONDI-TIONS."

TWO CITIES SPEAK

Deaths of People and Business

Stagnation Laid to Blockaded Roads.

Importance of snow removal from the Janesville-Beloit concrete highway this coming winter, when placed before the county board of supervisors Wednesday afternoon by a delegation of six from the chambers of commerce of the two cities and the Rock county automobile association, created a stir in that august body. Instead of the rather jocular mood in which the snow problem was received a year ago, the board changed into an animated, bustling legislature, but without giving it serious attention as soon as the speakers had concluded. Little knots were gathered at several parts of the board room discussing and arguing the proposition.

Committee Appears.

For more than all the needs and advantages of keeping the road clear, the delegations were placed before the board by the delegation, headed by A. J. Gibbons, president of the Janesville commerce body. When they had finished and few questions had been exchanged, W. C. Johnson of Clinton, mo., said it was decided that the question should be placed on the calendar as the first matter of business to be taken up this morning.

While no general interrogating was done prior to the taking of the plan under advisement, P. F. Richardson, supervisor from the Second ward of this city, almost threw a bombshell into the ranks of the petitioners when he asked Mr. Gibbons this question:

"Assuming that the county board keep the road open, would it not become impossible for the public to become liable for the statistics for any injury sustained on that opened road; and assuming that 50 people along the road petition the state to order the county to keep the road open, under which latter condition the county would not be liable for injury, what course would you think advisable?"

"Old System, Out of Date."

"I don't know," answered Mr. Gibbons, "but I do know that men want to do things that can be done and nothing has ever been done until they decide to do them. You cannot carry out on the basis of the old system. You must change your attitude to come up to the present mode of living."

"I do not dispute you there," came Richardson in reply, "but we are limited."

The committee took Mr. Richardson's query to be an attempt to confuse the issue, inasmuch, they later stated, as no petition or motion was made under the calendar on the road issue.

DEMOCRATS WANT TO BEGIN AGAIN

Trying to Marshal the Scatter ed Forces and Start the 1922 Campaign.

By DAVID LAWRENCE, (Copyright 1920, Janesville Daily Gazette.)

Washington, Nov. 11.—Leaders of the democratic party have practically agreed upon a course of action looking to the cause of both houses of congress in 1922 and the presidency. Far from being dismayed by the overwhelming defeat suffered at the polls last week, the democratic leaders have turned back to the fight with a spirit that unlike anything a defeated party has shown in generations. The principles on which the organization of the party will be based are these:

First.—The selection as national chairman of an organ who will for the next four years give his whole time to the task of organizing in the United States. Wherever there are no democratic organizations new ones will be started.

Second.—An effort to get unanimous agreement upon the man who is to lead in organizing so as to remove at the outset any traces of factionalism.

Third.—The new chairman must be a man who has not been actively identified with any of the different factions; he must be on friendly terms with the Cox people, the friends of Palmer, the followers of McAdoo and Wilson, and be skillful enough to attract friends of Mr. Bryan and western democrats.

Fourth.—A list of candidates for 1924 is entirely taboo. The effort to do this is factionalism outside the door until the next national convention requires its introduction.

Learned From Republicans

In these principles the democrats have taken a lot out of the republican book. All the talk about a new leader for the democrats, all the suggestions about Mr. Bryan or Mr. McAdoo or Mr. Cox, assuming the leadership are being forgotten. For the republicans haven't had an outstanding leader but simply a good orator—Will Hays. It was Mr. Hays' method to travel about the country and keep things harmonious. He gave the impression for a long time that he wasn't interested in any candidacy or hoping but merely in solidarity. How long will endure depends now on Warren Harding. The job of Hays is done.

Rousing the Dullest

So the democrats who have been in conference here the last few days have come to the conclusion that the wisest thing to do now is to reorganize the party and get everybody in it working together for democratic success next time.

Speaking of the spirit of the democrats, they do not regard the defeat as a step at a league of nations but merely as the natural reaction of the American people to their war government, a reaction parallel to the political overturning of other governments in Europe. The democrats have not the slightest intention of abandoning the league of nations and allies. They mean to keep it alive and tight for that during the next four years. They plan to keep intact the movement of revolutionaries and democrats who under Prof. Irving Fisher constituted an independent pro-league organization.

Speaking of the Dullest

The democrats are joyful for another reason. They could not get much money during the early days of the campaign and did not begin to get funds in any quantity until the last part of September, but checks keep flowing in after election and the confident prediction is made by the leaders that the deficit, estimated between $200,000 and $300,000, will soon be collected and new funds for reorganization provided.

As for leadership, the prospect is that Senator Underwood will be the real leader in congress. And he is a man who believes in cause and harmony and not in imposing his own views. He gave an example of the leadership in the days just before democratic success in 1912, and was precise enough to be regarded as a presidential possibility. He is personally popular and will have little difficulty in getting re-organization.

Who Wins?

Outside the halls of congress the question of leadership of a defeated party is more or less abstract, anyway. Woodrow Wilson himself will have a few things to say in private, just as Theodore Roosevelt used to do, and probably the influence of Mr. Wilson will not be without considerable effect. Instead of one gun bombardment the republicans the democratic expect to have several. The taxation program of the republicans will be scrutinized with especial care, as will the effort of the republicans to cut down the cost of living and bring liberty bonds back to par as pledged in the campaign by President-Elect Harding.

Going to Be Nice

All this may sound like immature partisanship, but the democrats have determined not to embarrass the next president in any way but merely to keep drawing the attention of the public to mistakes that may be made.

The democrats feel that the success of America has been the government and the action of one political party is always taken as a check on the other. Instead of letting the republicans have the whole field to themselves without criticism, the democrats conceive it to be their patriotic duty to play the part of opposition party, just as the republicans did in the last few years. And the circumstances of it all is the sublime recognition of the democrats that they will recapture both houses of congress within the next two years.

Improved Food Conditions in Germany Are Seen

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Reports of betterment of Germany's food situation through increased home production and improvement in handling imports were expressed by Andreas Ermerius, minister of food. The richland sources were lagging, he said, proposing to accelerate them by demanding close cooperation of federated states and producers.

Nova Scotians to Have Racing Fishing Schooner

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 11.—Announcements were made here of plans to build by popular subscription a fishing vessel to race next year in international schooner regattas off Halifax.

Native Nova Scotians will design and build the vessel, which will be used as a racing and racing schooner, but which will be designed particularly with next year's race in view.

PLEA IS MADE FOR OPEN WINTER ROADS

become impassable when it has reached that condition, it is impossible to open it successfully. On the other hand, S. G. Dunwidde, district attorney, in speaking with L. O. Holz, man, one of the delegates stated that the county is just as liable for injury on any of its roads, winter or winter, and that the closing of the state road, and thus the closing of the state road, is ambiguous.

To Keep Road Open

The purpose of the delegation is appearing before the board was to present the matter clearly and ask that the board appropriate 50 per cent of the cost of keeping this road open, the board to be subdivided by the chambers of commerce of the two cities. They did not state who would keep the road open, leaving that matter to the board. However, they did ask Charles E. Moore, county highway commissioner, his opinion on keeping the road open. His reply was that the county never had any experience in snow removal and therefore he could only guess as to the practicability of the plan. On the feasibility, he declared that the severity of the season would have to determine the time when the road was safe to open.

Rains Still Visible

It is widely known that the snow removal is the greatest problem.

Moore "To Do His Best."

He further stated that if any money is appropriated and he is made responsible, he will do his best to use it properly.

During the session, H. B. Moseley, town of Beloit and chairman of the county highway committee, in answer to a request by W. S. Perigo of the friends of Palmer, the followers of McAdoo and Wilson, and the supporters of Bryan and western democrats.

MASONIC LODGE IS SUED FOR $20,000

HELP THE FALLEN AND THEY WILL RISE, SAYS DOW

Sheldon Hardware Company Alleges Breach of Contract for Warner's Store.

A $20,121.65 breach of contract suit was filed yesterday in circuit court by the Sheldon Hardware company against trustees of four local lodges here. No. 2 Knights of Columbus, No. 5 Royal Arch Masons, No. 55 Free and Accepted Masons, and No. 14 Free and Accepted Masons.

The Sheldon company asserts that it was forced out of business for a short time because the Sam Warner store was not delivered according to the time specified in the lease. This place in the meantime was not doing business but had to be turned over to the Varsity Clothing company in August, 1919. The hardware company was then without a store of any kind.

The only available business place which was to be obtained by them was the Beldoff, which had to be purchased stock and all, at a cost of $1,000. This expense it is claimed should be paid by the lodges.

A total of $1,500 is asserted as loss incurred by having to place goods in a store house, there not being enough room in the grocery store. Due to the crowded conditions it was necessary to have many overhalls every week to get the place in proper order for the next day according to the hardware company.

This added another to an expense of $2,000, which the hardware company is also suing.

In the complaint $5,000 compensation is asked for loss said to be due to the fact that because of congested conditions in the Varsity store the hardware goods could not be properly displayed to customers, thus causing a loss in advertising and also because many customers could not be served because the articles they wanted could not be had if they obtained the building

they would have expense which have been saved in remodeling its interior which had to be done later when prices were much higher, claims the hardware company. For this the remainder of the $30,121.65 damages is asked.

DECLINE SEEN IN PRICES OF FOOD

Meats, Sugar, Milk, Flour and Coffee Drop—Eggs and Butter Go Higher.

At the Methodist church last night Dr. E. R. Smith spoke on the subject, "The Bad Woman in Heaven." His thought was an emphasis of that well known attitude of Christ repeatedly urging people to follow him and defend his attitude towards certain people with whom He associated.

"And how strange," he said, "that a good man should be condemned for going round among the lowly and sinful. No one could be a physician full. No one could be a teacher. Such people are not good, they would condemn him for it, seek the lost."

"Now, then, all the difference in the world is that one associates with seemingly bad people. If one associates with them, he is involved in their sins, then they are to be condemned. But if one associates with the good people, who are upright in life, there is no sin in it."

The meeting gains in interest and numbers, and a number come during the last two nights, making during the last two nights, making 100. Mr. Echols will sing to-night. "The Ninety and Nine" and "The Good Shepherd" will be the two songs.

The cottage prayer meeting will be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the Methodist Church.

PEACE PROGRAMS GIVEN IN SCHOOLS

Pupils of All Buildings Join in Observance of Armistice Day.

Armistice day was fittingly remembered in the schools of the city this morning with exercises in every class room of the eight grade schools and the high schools.

The programs which were given by the children of the various classes, consisted mainly of the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and "America," the reciting of patriotic selections by the pupils, and a talk by the teacher on the part America played in World War.

Allen Dearborn, of the Janesville Gazette, gave a talk to the 500 pupils of the Jefferson school on "Armistice Day in France," outlining his personal experiences on this memorable day when he was in a hospital in Toul, France, while a member of the Red Cross.

In the Adams school the kindergarten had a parade in the caps which were made by them, and members of the eighth grade held a splendid program, the chief feature of which was the reading of letters of home from Germany.

The program of the high school was interrupted at 11 o'clock for two minutes while the pupils faced the east in memory of the signing of the armistice. Dr. Dow, the evangelist, addressed the pupils on "Essentials of Success." Duets were given by Dr. Dow and Mrs. Scholten, and the school band joined in singing the "Star Spangled Banner." All schools of the city were dismissed for the day at 11:15.

An inspiring program was given at the Lincoln school by pupils of the seventh and eighth grades, and the vocational school. An spirited address was made by Rev. R. G. Pierson on "A New Americanism." Miss Ruth Pritz led the singing by the pupils of "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and "There's a Long, Long Trail" closing with the national anthem and American. The pupils of the vocational grade gave recitations "Flanders Fields" and "America's Answer." The program was arranged by J. M. Dorris, principal of the vocational school.

It was during her stay there that her husband's death came.

OCTOBER IS NOT MONTH FOR BRIDES

October is not a month for brides in Rock county. Fewer applications for license to marry are made at the office of Howard Lee, county clerk, during this month than almost any other throughout the year, records show.

Not only is this true for last month when only 49 made application for license to marry, but during October of last year only 55 applied for licenses. This number is less than one-third of the number made in June, the most popular of all months for marriages.

POST OFFICE PUTS BAN ON SKUNKS

This eliminates the uncomfortable situation which the postoffice forces have experienced days after the animal skins were shipped.

TODAY.

We pay tribute today to the dead in Flanders and France, in Italy and Siberia.

We pay homage today to the nation which has borne us for 133 years through great travail and in the hours of peace as well.

We remember today a long, thin line of men of every nation fighting for homes and family and against the horrors of a military machine.

We will not forget today the silence that came for a second and the mad cheers that followed the lifting of the cloud of powder smoke, swept away the wave of poison gas and saved youth from steel and lead and mangled death.

Janesville paid her price for the privilege of celebrating today. So did all Southern Wisconsin in step with the republic. We may have sorrow, but we have no apology to make here to the nation or the world.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT IN PEACE.

It will be some time before Warren G. Harding is actually elected president. The electors of the states will meet in January and the result be finally canvassed in February only about three weeks before the inauguration. The fathers of the government hedged the election of a president about with this safeguarding lapse of time for a definite purpose. They were deeply appreciative of the fact that the office of president was of such importance that the election of one should in no way favor the mob. In all elections since 1856 when party divisions have been clear, the majority in the electoral college for president has been large enough to be emphatic. It is possible to select the electors by a plurality vote, but the electoral majority under the constitution must be clear. Otherwise it will be thrown into the House of Representatives for selection or a president and into the senate for choice of the vice president. That has occurred twice, once when Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr received the same number of votes and when John Quincy Adams was selected over Andrew Jackson in 1825.

The largest number of electoral votes ever received by a candidate for the presidency was 435, by Woodrow Wilson in 1913. The next highest number will be in 1921 when Warren G. Harding will receive 405. This last is the highest number of votes ever given to a republican candidate and the largest number ever given to any candidate when the issue has been definitely between the two great political parties. Taft, in 1912, had the lowest number ever given to a republican, receiving only 8 votes. With the exception of Wilson in 1913, Harding's majority in the electoral college in 1921 will be the largest ever given to a candidate for the presidency. It is 278. Mr. Cox has received the smallest number of votes ever given to a democratic candidate, 126. Kentucky was so close that the lowest man on the list of electors from that state has been defeated by the highest man on the republican ticket, and Harding and Coolidge will therefore get one vote from Kentucky. That occurred in 1892 when Ohio did the same and Cleveland received one vote from that state.

It has been proposed from time to time that the president be elected by popular vote. But the thinkers of the constitution forgot that the United States is not a centralized government, but a union of states, and that in the presidential election the state is the unit as it originally was intended. If we elected a president by the total popular vote the necessary corollary would be that a state would become a mere province governed from Washington.

We have just gone through a great revolution in government. It has been without armed conflict. There were no troops at the polls. It has been as peaceful as a church social except in one particular where there was trouble over negro vote in Florida. We do not believe such an election can be held in any other nation of the world, not even Great Britain. In Silesia and in the Schleswig provinces where plebiscites were held, troops were a necessary part of the landscape. In Mexico the same. But here, with 105,000,000 people involved, we have a change in government without a disturbance. Surely we are still a nation of peace, a people who believe in their own institutions and the sacredness of the foundations. It is our duty to so keep and maintain them.

CELEBRATING PEACE WHILE AT WAR.

The United States celebrates peace today while at war. The armistice signed two years ago today meant a cessation of hostilities, and in spite of the attempt to saddle upon the republic of the United States obligations and alliances that belong only to hereditary monarchs or to greedy nations seeking neighbors' real estate, we have accepted the armistice as meaning peace and proceeded with our business as usual.

That is the American way. But there is reason for peace of a recorded kind and made in documentary form. It will be done, we believe, as soon as the administration of Warren G. Harding is inaugurated. It would not need to take that long were the present administration less stubborn over peace only with "trimmings."

What the people, who are celebrating all over the nation today, want is a cessation of war as complete on paper as it is in reality. That can come by resolution of the same kind as has been voted by the president and which Senator Harding has promised will be signed by him. It will simply declare the war ended—a seemingly unnecessary act, but legally of the utmost im-

Behind the Vaudeville Stage

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C., Nov. 11.—What goes on behind the scenes in the movies and the drama is an old story, but the spotlight is rarely focused on the hidden side of vaudeville.

The vaudeville player differs from the actor in three-act play in that he has no manager traveling with his production to take care of trunks, scenery, and music. Nearly every week he plays on a different stage, with different furniture about him, and a different orchestra in front, and if anything goes wrong with his act he is responsible.

If you watch the stage entrance to a vaudeville house any Monday morning, you will see the actors for the week going in to rehearsal. About nine o'clock they begin to drift in and wander about the stage, consulting the property man and the electrician, locating dressing rooms, renewing acquaintances with other players who happen to be on the bill that week. The electrician goes about jutting down or a chart which ones want a spotlight, or colored lights, or any other special effect. Carpenters and stage hands begin rolling down drops painted like forests and city streets from the dim upper regions.

The property man has received in advance from each set of actors a plan of the scene showing what properties will be needed. If a bust of George Washington, a red bandana handkerchief, or a special curtain is used in an act the actors carry it with them. But ordinary furniture and settings are supplied by the theater.

The plan which the property man holds, perhaps, calls for "Studio, full stage. Two telephones, telephone bell, three gold chairs, piano lamp, curtains at window." The property man says these are ordinary pieces of stage furniture and can all be got out of the property room just off the stage where "live" props—those often used—are kept.

The plan for the next act, however, calls for a kitchen.

"Hardest kind of a set to get together," remarks the property man. "Have to go up to the store room."

An elevator shoots up to the fifth floor of the theater, to a room stocked like a well-equipped old attic or a second-hand furniture store. He digs out a splinting wheel from under a pile of wicker porch chairs, and a kettle is discovered back of a throne chair, all red velvet and gilt paint.

"I made that throne," says the property man. "Took the legs of an old square piano for the legs, and the pedals for the arms. I made this grandfather's clock, too," and he points to a tall, wooden, cardboard-faced clock, which at a few feet would certainly deceive anyone.

"I've got to get the rain apparatus while I'm up here," he mumbles from the depths of a heap of chairs and tables. "Here it is. You see it's a round wooden pan with a handful of shot in it. When you rattle it around, it sounds just like rain. For surf we use this wire netting box with oyster shells inside. You rock it steadily back and forth to get the effect of the roll of the waves. We bang a bass drum for thunder, and drop this bucket of glass and iron scrapes for a crash off-stage. To get the effect of approaching horses' hoofs, we beat two coconut shells on a carpet for surf, or on a piece of concrete for street."

"Ever see stage books? We take a round piece of wood like a broom handle, and split it, and paint each half to look like the back of a book. The halves are glued to the shelves of a bookcase. Most of our props are bought, though."

When we descend, the stage looks and sounds more chaotic than ever, for rehearsal with the orchestra has just begun. A rowboat is being put together by a stage hand under the direction of an actor who has brought in sections to use in his scene. Behind this bit of carpentry, the stage is weirdly dressed in a drop curtain representing a long vista of a ballroom, with garden "flies" belonging to a different act on each side, and pieces of a flowered silk curtain are being put together and hung from a pole in front of the forest.

Down at the front of the stage a dancer stands the orchestra a set of books with his music inside.

"Open with the introduction twice, at strict tempo," he says. "Then, off suddenly, and when I hold out my hand to the girl, swing into 'Love Me'."

The orchestra leader nods and the introduction is played, while the young dancer jerks his head and his foot to show the time he wants.

"That's it. Now for the next number, I want the drums strong at the end." So he goes through the act pointing out the irregularities in the score and the cues and insisting on the time being just so. Only the difficult parts are played, for there is not time to rehearse everything.

The next number is an elaborate production with a large cast and a great deal of music. It has brought along its own orchestra leader, so the regular director sits down in the front row of the orchestra chairs to rest.

"Dancers are always nervous about their music," he explains, referring to the vanishing dancer and his girl partner. "The least variation from the proper time may throw them out of step, or spoil the effect of a madame."

"There's the inspector from the fire department—pointing to a man in blue uniform who is carefully trying to set fire to some blue and white curtains. "He comes in every Monday to see that the curtains, paper, flowers, and other decorations brought by the actors are fireproofed.

"The big drop curtain in this theater is steel asbestos, nine inches thick. It weighs 14 tons, and when it's down you can hardly hear the orchestra behind the scenes. It would take an hour to burn through it. Remember that old theater in the Washington, when not a piece of the asbestos curtain, that was supposed to be fireproof, could be found in the wreck?"

When the rehearsal is over, and we go back on the stage, it is set for the first act of the afternoon performance. In the wings on each side is arranged a little dressing room with a cheval mirror and a chair, and a screen around it. There will be a maid on hand during the performance to help with quick changes that have to be made during an act.

Men who have to make quick changes sometimes wear several pairs of specially constructed trousers, which snap down both sides like gloves. A swift jerk on each side takes off the top pair in an instant. When stockings have to be changed in a hurry it is customary to put on as many pairs as will be needed and peel off one at a time when the costume is altered. Our friend the property man says he is often called on for a hand with troublesome hooks.

Stage stories heard 14 times a week, lose their color to us, and even new quirks must be unusually clever to win a smile from any of the stage stars. For that matter, the comedian who footlights, usually assumes a serious face and tone of voice the moment he reaches the wings. Practicing amusment of any kind is a serious business.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

While I admit you did a wise thing in buying a pair of scales to weigh groceries etc., as an argument against the high cost of living, still I think I can suggest an even better scheme for you to keep down expenses.

As follows: You know how mentally lacking you are when it comes to arithmetic and how whenever you try to add up a column of figures the sum total is always a surprise to everybody except you. Well, I've thought of a way for you to kid the grocer and the butcher etc. into thinking that you are checking up on them when they add up the damage for the things you've bought, and like that keep them from adding in the day of the month etc. like they do when they're dealing with a woman with a faraway look instead of a gift for arithmetic.

To wit: After you've bought all you can think of, which you must be doing lately, by the way, judging from the small fortunes you've been gallivanting through—anyway, when the clerk starts to add up the items, that's your cue to lean your elbow on the counter and follow his pencil with your eyes at the same time forcing a look of concentrated intelligence into your face. And that's right. Eh heh. Eh heh, to keep up the illusion.

I've known business to be worse but not much. However, I have great hopes for that now soup the Daisy Carned Soups Co. has just introduced. Dandelion Soup. I must admit, though, that its first introduction into my territory hasn't been a rousing success. As the leading grocer of this so called city remarked to me today, "If they can't make any headway with a tomato what can they hope to do with a dandelion?"

Well, be good.

 Aff.
JOE.

Heart and Home Problems

 BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Thompson, In Care of the Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man and have lately become engaged to a wonderful girl. We are very congenial and I recently gave her a diamond ring which she is wearing. As yet we have not set a date for the wedding, but all our friends know that we are to be married.

What is it that friends often try to hint one? I am living with three friends in an apartment and they are continually saying until we get married. Do you think they are right? I do not really think they are, but I am not sure about my lady friend. I do not really think that makes any difference in their remarks and certainly not in keeping our friendship. I have let them know that I do not like their attitude, but it only makes them worse.

What should I do? I do not feel that I can tolerate them any longer, but I think they are all old and dear friends. If you will please answer this letter in your column I shall appreciate it greatly. Yours in trouble.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married man and have a good job and I think I am doing well. My wife wants me to go south and I don't want to say anything to hurt her feelings. Do you think I can do this? Please give me your advice.

TROUBLED.

Do not give up good position for an uncertainty, especially an uncertain one. Good jobs are as plentiful as they have been in the last few years. It is your duty to provide a living for your wife, and if you find it unwise to humor her in every respect say so and give your reason.

Sometimes, however, it is better to look at the fact that your wife is in poor health and that a change would benefit her. When it is a question of health, the change should be made. With tuberculosis, for instance, the climate means everything to the invalid's state of health.

grated nutmeg, flour to roll out. Beat yolks of eggs and sugar, cream, milk, add cream, turnip, sugar, salt, mix and sifted with nut of flour, white of eggs beaten until stiff, and flour to make a dough stiff enough to roll out. Shape and fry in deep fat. Doughnuts come to the top quickly, cut on one side and roll out. Cooked on one side, then roll out. If fat is too cold, doughnut will absorb fat; if too hot, they will cook on the outside before sufficiently risen. Start with high flame and turn down if grease becomes too hot.

Sour Milk Doughnuts: One egg, one cup sugar, one cup sour milk, one tablespoon sour cream, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, flour (about three cups).

Beat eggs and sugar beat hard add sugar and cream, then flour mixed with remainder of dry ingredients; add enough flour to handle, but keep as soft as possible. Cut and fry in deep fat.

Biscuit—Samuel Short, a Junior at Beloit College and editor of the Round Table, a student newspaper, accepted the college's chairman of the General Educational Fund's $200,000 to the college if the trustees will raise an additional $100,000. The money will be raised by a special solicitation as far as possible. The money is to be used for the care of a deficit incurred in the last two years to pay larger salaries to instructors.

By holding manufacturers to strict accountability for the sale of stilts, accountabilities of the aridity department has acted in restraint of profitables trade.

TESTED RECIPES

Potato Stuffing—Take the butcher meat as pocket in the breast of veal, which should weigh about two and one-half pounds. Now, place in a frying pan one-half cup chopped onions and one-half cup chopped celery. Continue without browning or onions and then add one cup of green leaves of celery, chopped fine, one and one-half cups mashed potatoes, two-thirds cup of bread crumbs, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon of pepper, one-eighth teaspoon of sage, one-quarter teaspoon of nutmeg, one-quarter teaspoon of nutmeg, one-quarter teaspoon of mace, one cup milk.

Layer Cake—Place in a mixing bowl one cup sugar, one-half cup shortening, two eggs, one-half cup milk, and then add one and one-half cups flour, one level teaspoon baking powder, one-half level teaspoon powdered mace, one cup milk.

Beat to mix and then bake in two well greased and floured cake pans in a moderate oven for 25 minutes. Remove and then cool and put together with a chocolate filling made as follows: One cup sugar, one cup water, one-half cup coco, five level tablespoons cornstarch. Stir to dissolve the starch and then bring to a boil and cool slowly for five minutes. Remove from the fire and add one teaspoon vanilla extract, one-half teaspoon cinnamon extract, pinch of salt. Cool and then use for filling. Now ice the top with hard sauce by using the No. 1 method and then sprinkle with finely chopped nuts.

DOUGHNUT RECIPES

Cream Doughnuts—One cup sugar, three eggs, three-quarters cup cream, one cup butter, one cup milk, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon, one-quarter teaspoon soda, two teaspoons tartar (slightly rounded), one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-quarter teaspoon.

2,000 MEDALS ARE AWARDED IN NAVY

Honor Paid to Heroes at Sea and Marines in All Parts of World.

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Nov. 11.—The second anniversary of the signing of the armistice was celebrated yesterday in the navy and marine corps by the distribution of nearly 2,000 medals and letters of commendation for distinguished performance of duty during the war. The medals and letters awarded had been forwarded to commanding officers in the navy and marine corps by radio and telegraph to day from Secretary of the Navy, with the honors were distributed with appropriate ceremonies.

The action marked the final phase of the controversy over naval decorations that resulted in a congressional investigation last winter after Rear Admiral W. S. Sims had refused to accept the distinguished service medal intended for him, on the ground that injustice had marked the manner of distributing the navy's recognition of distinguished war-time services.

Publication today of the list of awards as finally approved by the secretary, shows the original list to be unchanged, so far as decorations are concerned. Rear Admiral Sims' name again appears on the list, as having been awarded a D. S. M., but it is said at the navy department that the medal had not been forwarded to Admiral Sims' due to the officer's previous refusal to accept the honor. The medal, like all navy decorations, was awarded to Admiral Benson, Captain Raymond Rasmussen, who took action similar to that of Admiral Sims, having been deposited in the bureau of navigation for such future action regarding acceptance of the medals as the officers concerned might wish.

The list of awards as finally approved, showed a considerable increase over the list published before the congressional investigation. In addition to the names added to the original number of awards as finally approved, were increased in importance over the honor accorded in the original list. Special certificates of appreciation were sent to the navy department to day to 261 officers who served in the naval overseas transportation service during the war.

MINORS AGREE TO MEET WITH MAJOR LEAGUES

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—Rival major league club owners are meeting on their plan today preparatory to the peace conference of the sixteen club owners in Chicago tomorrow. The major leaguers who obtained the aid of the National Association of Minor Leagues in settling the threatened war, will move to Chicago tomorrow.

President E. L. Johnson and his "loyal five" club owners left last night for final conference on the battle ground before the meeting. August Herrmann, owner of the Cincinnati Indians, and several other National League officials also departed so as to be on the scene early and lay their plans. Charles Ebbets, of the Brooklyn Nationals and others, remained over the weekend for important conferences.

The invasion prevailed in baseball circles today that Federal Judge Landis of Chicago, who has been selected as chairman of the $50,000 a year, who has unanimously agreed upon his appointment, would be held by the "loyal five" American League club owners after the peace meeting tomorrow.

Judge Landis' name is heard on every hand among baseball men. It is pointed out that Judge Landis is not held in high esteem and not only from the stand-point of the fan either. It was before him that the court fight of the old Federal league against organized baseball was held. Baseball leaders say it is as disinterested as any man who could be round a greater admirer of the game and is obligated to nobody.

Minors Name Committee. Selection of the committee to be appointed today by the minor leagues to help reorganize baseball was the chief business before the minor league convention. The minor leagues voted for a committee of six with President M. H. Sexton as chairman to confer with committees of like numbers to be named by the National and American leagues.

"IT LOOKS LIKE PEACE," SAYS A. D. LASKER

Chicago, Nov. 11.—"It looks like peace," A. D. Lasker, originator of the Lasker plan of baseball control, said when informed of the decision of the American League club owners. Kansas City had arranged for a meeting here on Friday to discuss reorganization.

"There won't be any backing down by the new National league, however," he added. "We have made our proposal and sent it to the five American League clubs to come in with us or we'll forget all about them and go ahead with the twelve club league."

WILLIAMS PICKED TO STAR AGAINST ILLINI

Madison, Wis., Nov. 11.—The Badgers engaged in their last scrimmage Wednesday in preparation for their homecoming game. Coach Richards placed the men with extra long practice, most of which was spent in hand scrapping against the Illini. The varsity played through the Illini defense and presented a stout wall to their attacks.

The team is in splendid condition and the Badgers' determination to make their homecoming a success by repeating last year's performance repeats. Last year, the team, which included the Illini, were beaten by the Badgers at the end, are certain to get into action. Elliott, Sundt, and Holmes are doing their best work, while Williams is fair to work, who will pilot the Badgers. Probably both will get a chance.
